OLD CITIZENS MEET IN HOMECOMING OF DANVILLE'S PEOPLE

Gathering Sunday Lasts
Throughout the Entire Day

PICNIC DINNER SERVED AT NOON

Former Residents Of Historic Section
Are Speakers

Danville, a former educational center of Morgan County, before the days when railroads drew large numbers of its older citizens away from their native homes, was the scene of an impressive "home coming day" Sunday, when old citizens of the town, now living throughout Alabama, joined with their younger kin people at Danville in a large religious and social gathering that lasted the entire day. A picnic dinner was given on the grounds near the Methodist church where the preaching service was held in the morning and the social meeting in the afternoon.

Aged Confederate veteran, M. T. (Uncle Milt) Stephenson, was the first speaker at the afternoon meeting. He was introduced by Rev. Paul Cook, pastor of Danville Methodist church, as "the only living representative of old Danville." Former Lieutenant Governor Nathan L. Miller, now of Birmingham, but who was born in Danville where he was educated, was the second speaker. He named T. L. Baker and Mrs. Frank J. Troup, the last named deceased, as his Sunday School teachers; and Professors Nash, Dagg, Shaw, Montjoy, and J. C. Tidwell former superintendent of education for Morgan County, as his "day school" teachers.

Governor Miller said since his days at Danville, Alabama tax books showed a billion dollars valuation at the present time, whereas near 40 years ago, the tax value was only $167,000. He said Morgan County wealth had increased ten fold in about 40 years.

Valley Needs Wealth
Mr. Miller declared that the Tennessee Valley, much richer than "the wire grass country of the state" and richer than the "sand mountain section," was behind those sections in wealth.

"Our people, while we have done something, we need not take the unction to ourselves that we have done all we could," declared Mr. Miller when he urged the Tennessee Valley as the rightful location for happy homes, wealthy people and highly endowed people.

"I hope yet to see the Tennessee Valley as the most productive agri-

Child Is Bitten By Pet Kitten; Being Treated

Ora Mae, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Little, living a few miles west of the Twin Cities on the Danville pike is being given the pasteur treatment by Dr. C. S. Chenaunt. The little girl was bitten recently by a pet kitten, which when it showed signs of hydrophobia, was allowed to die, and then Dr. Chenaunt sent its head to the Tennessee Valley Laboratory and tests showed "positive."

Since the full directions given by health officers were carried out, in allowing the animal to die, etc., rather than killing it, it is believed there is no doubt the kitten had rabies at the time it attacked the child. Dr. Chenaunt stated the little girl as yet, has suffered no inconvenience since the pasteur treatment was given her.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE IS GORED TO DEATH BY BULL ON HIS FARM

(Associated Press)

SIoux FALLS, S. D., Aug. 11.—Andrew S. Anderson, Democratic nominee for governor of South Dakota, was gored to death early today at his farm near Reresford, S. D., 30 miles south of Sioux Falls, in Clay county.

Details of the tragedy are lacking, but meagre telephone reports indicated that Mr. Anderson had gone to the pasture to take care of the stock when one of the bulls in his herd became enraged and attacked him.

Delegates Hopeful As

OUTLOOK BRIGHT FOR FULL ACCORD

Complete Trial Seems Likely Now For the Dawes Plan

(Associated Press)
LONDON, Aug. 11.—The allied and German experts attached to the international reparations conference have reached a full agreement on the Dawes program it is announced. They remained in session until three o'clock this morning to arrive at an understanding on reparations payments in kind, on which the Germans held out until the result of Premier Herriot's Paris mission became known.

The French premier's return with his cabinet's approval of his Ruhr evacuation policy in his pocket put new life and hope into the negotiations and British observers believed the conference will end by Thursday.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The question of the evacuation of the Ruhr was being considered late this forenoon at a conference of the French and Belgian delegates. Until they have reached an agreement among themselves on this problem, there will not be another meeting with the Germans and it is not expected such a meeting will come before tomorrow.

Names for the post of permanent agent general to carry the Dawes plan into effect are being discussed in conference circles since the announcement that the French will agree to the evacuation of the Ruhr on condition which it seems likely the Germans will accept.

James Logan, American representative on the reparations committee, Dwight W. Morrow, of J. P. Morgan and company and Paul D. Cravath are mentioned frequently. Owen D. Young of the Dawes committee, seems to be generally regarded in conference circles as the ideal man to initiate the Dawes plan, but his announcement that he would only consider taking the post temporarily makes the selection of his successor necessarily at an early date.

This morning the big fourteen, the allied and delegation leaders, met for an hour and a half at No. 10 Downing street and heard the French premier's report of his Paris trip. They then briefly considered the one remaining problem within the purview of the conference proper, that of the allied railroads remaining on the German lines.

American Fliers Still Awaiting Outcome
Of the Search

(Associated Press)
REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 11.—The United States Cruiser Raleigh, exploring the east coast of Greenland, in search of a landing place for the American round the world fliers, today reported to Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder that she was in a dense fog 90 miles east of Angmagssalik and that she had encountered many floating ice hummocks.

While the vessel was attempting to gain the sea clear of ice a hummock touched it, slightly damaging the starboard forward propeller, according to the report to the admiral.

In a statement this morning, Admiral Magruder said it was doubtful if Angmagssalik could be used as a base by the scout plants which are being carried by the cruisers Raleigh and Richmond to explore the coast.

The Danish supply ship Gertrude Trask, which is ice bound and which reported yesterday that she needed coal, expects to clear the ice pack in two days, she reported today.

Flight Commander Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith has engaged a trawler here to carry 800 tons of coal to the Danish ship and to refuel her at the edge of the ice.

Lieutenant Smith and Lieutenant Eric Nelson believed that the hope of providing a base at Angmagssalik or at some point south of the east coast of Greenland now depends on the Gertrude Trask.

GREEKS' REQUEST TO SEE JESUS UNIVERSAL LONGING, SAYS PASTOR

Speaking from his pulpit at the Southside Baptist church Sunday morning, Rev. E. Floyd Olive explained the mission of certain Greeks who were quoted in St. John 12-21 as saying: "We would see Jesus." Sunday night Rev. Olive preached on "God's call to Abraham." Good sized audiences heard both sermons of Rev. Olive. An inspiring song service preceded the sermons.

At the morning service Rev. Olive said in part: "Those Greeks expressed a universal longing when they said to Philip, 'Sir we would see Jesus.' The world is looking for Jesus. All men desire Him. They may not realize it, but they are seeking that which Jesus alone can give. All men desire peace and joy: Therefore they desire Jesus for He alone can give that peace and joy which satisfy. (John 14:27; 15:11). All men desire freedom and life, then they desire Jesus for He says: 'If the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.' 'I am the way, and the truth and the life.' 'I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.'

All men are seeking Jesus for true riches and real rest can only be found in Him. (II Cor. 8:9; Mt. 11:28-30.) Can the world see Jesus in you? Evidently, the Greeks saw Jesus in Phillip. When they looked into his face they perceived that he had been with Jesus, and they said: 'Sir, we would see Jesus.' It was a great compliment. And the greatest compliment that the unsaved can pay is to ask you to show them the way to Jesus. How may we show that we have been with Jesus? First, by our conduct. By living a life of consecrated service. By sacrificial giving for the advancement of His kingdom. In other words, by living Christ's life over again, we can let the world see Jesus. Second, by preaching the gospel, the good news of salvation for sinners thru the blood of a crucified, buried and risen Saviour.

At the evening hour the subject being "God's Call to Abraham," the chief points made were: God's call to each individual, and his plan and purpose for every life, with some discussion of the way to find God's plan for our lives.

HEARING ON STATUS OF CAR SERVICE TO BE HELD TUESDAY

Session To Determine
If Service Here Is To Be Curtailed

UTILITY BODY TO ATTEND MEETING

President Weakley To Be Here Also For Conference

The public hearing announced to be opened here early in this month, by the Alabama public service commission in connection with the local street car service will be held tomorrow in the rooms of the Albany-Decatur chamber of commerce or at the Morgan County court house. It is expected that Chairman A. G. Patterson of the commission and associate commissioners Lee and Morgan will arrive Tuesday on the Pan-American from Montgomery.

John B. Weakley, president of the Alabama Traction company, the concern that operates the street cars in the Twin Cities is expected on the same train from his home in Birmingham.

Local attorneys Eyster and Eyster, legal advisers of the traction company are arranging for the hearing.

The public is invited to hear the evidence and the testimony in the case, which is said to involve for a time at least the future course of the traction company as to whether it shall greatly decrease its service here, or increase the fares charged for travel on the street cars.

A number of informal hearings, and hearings before city officials of the Twin Cities have occurred in the last few months over the street car situation.

A committee made up of city officials and business men of both cities is expected to make a report to the public service commission when it goes into session Tuesday morning.

DAVIS PERSONALLY WELCOMES CHIEFS TO HIS HOMETOWN

Extends Fellowship To Party's Leaders At Clarksburg

ORGANIZATION IS HIGHLY STRESSED

Co-operation In Work
For Party Success
Is Necessary

(Associated Press)
CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 11.—John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate, personally welcomed to Clarksburg today the leaders of his party who have assembled for his formal notification tonight.

Appearing before the national committee to suggest the selection of Clem L. Shaver, of Fairmont as its chairman, Mr. Davis urged the necessity for organization and declared that it was the duty of the committee and of himself to see that the country is fully informed "concerning" those things that will influence their decision in November.

"I promise you to spare no effort to this end," he said. "I am equally sure that no effort will be lacking on your part and that the only contest which can arise between us as to which can do the most in the common cause."

Mr. Davis told the committee it was its peculiar task to stimulate those organizations already at work, to build up those that are weak and to furnish organizations in those places where there are lacking.

"It is a sincere pleasure to me," Mr. Davis said, "to welcome you here to my native state and to the city of my birth. As you have doubtless observed the city of Clarksburg is not so large as either New York or Chicago and does not rise as high in the world as Denver, or sit as level as Detroit among her plains. And yet, you will find here a fair cross section of those human elements, old and new, which go to make up America. Many racial strains are represented in this unit of population and few schools of thought political or religious, are without their adherents, but in them all the humble virtues of industry and thrift and honesty and human kindness still persist and through them all run the inevitable frailties of our common human nature."

"The great desire at the moment is to show to you the sense of honor which they feel in your presence and to testify to their interest in the ceremony that calls you here. The democrats of the state especially will be stimulated and encouraged by the fact that you have come to mingle with them."

"As your candidate, I welcome myself this opportunity to come again into personal contact with you. It is to you that I look, not only for advice and guidance during the campaign, but for that organized effort which is indispensable to political success. It would border on impertinence to preach to seasoned veterans like yourselves the necessity for organization. All of us know that no political campaign is ever won without it."

Section Foreman On Ellenen Picks Up Prisoner

FIRES TWICE AT THE NEGRO

Citizens Join Hunt
For Man Thought
To Be Milton

Through a densely wooded area along Flint creek, a posse of 100 heavily armed men this afternoon hunted for a negro believed to be John Milton alleged axe murderer, slayer of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blaney Collins of near Birmingham, the assailant of Mrs. Collins.

The man hunt today was transferred from the Birmingham section to Morgan County when T. J. Pinson, section foreman of the Louisville and Nashville railroad at Hartselle, and his gang of workmen, found a suspicious negro in a railroad cut near Hartselle.

Mr. Pinson placed the negro in custody, believing him to be Milton and the black was taken aboard a handcar and headed toward town. Suddenly the prisoner jumped for freedom, pursued by other negro members of the working party. Mr. Pinson brought his pistol into action and fired twice at the fleeing form. He did not believe, however, that the negro was hit. The presence of the pursuers made it difficult for the foreman to shoot, for fear that he would hit one of his own men.

The prisoner escaped near the cemetery, just north of Hartselle.

Immediately the word was flashed to officers here and in Hartselle and within a short time crowds of men gathered along the railroad and the Bee Line highway and the hunt was on in deadly earnest. Feeling in Hartselle this afternoon was high.

Soon after Chief of Police Berchey of Hartselle and Sheriff Poole arrived on the scene, the posse divided and began an encircling movement which they hoped would bring the black into the lines. Part of the posse began beating through the dense woods for miles around Flint creek bridge from a point nearer the creek. It was apparent that the negro was attempting to get to the railroad or to the creek, coming in the direction of the Twin Cities.

The last time the black was seen was on the farm of Crafton Nance. The message that he had been seen there was quickly telephoned to officers and a search is being made in all of the vicinity of the farm.

The negro, at that time, was said to have been barefooted and bareheaded. He was said also to be limping slightly, indicating that possibly he had been struck by one of Pinson's shots, or had cut his foot.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 11.—A negro believed to be John Milton, escaped convict, who is alleged to have slain the infant daughter of Mrs. Blaney Collins and dangerously wounded the mother, when they were attacked Friday night by a negro wielding a double bladed axe, was captured today and made his second escape within 12 hours it was reported here. The negro was located in a railroad cut north of Hartselle at noon by T. J. Pinson, section foreman for the Louisville and Nashville railroad, but is reported to have escaped.

Chief of Police Berchey of Hartselle who is leading a posse in pursuit of the fugitive is said to have cornered him in a cemetery near Hartselle.

Saturday's doubleheader in the Y. M. C. A. Industrial league went to The Daily over the Cornicemen 11-4 while the Powermen held an early lead over the Shopmen for a 10-8 victory in a slow but interesting affair.

Before an enthusiastic crowd of local fans The Daily opened the engagement with the Cornicemen with an early lead large enough to sew up the affair in the first half of the first frame. Five hits, two of them home runs, a sacrifice and five errors paved the way for six Daily counters and the contest was refrigerated. Lee and Bowen each hit for the circuit in the opening inning, one man being aboard when Lee cracked a liner into right center. Bowen laid on the ash with the bases full. The Daily added another pair in the second inning when Redus Collier tripled with one man on and came home later on another blow. Odom was replaced by Moore for the toil of hurling.

Smith contributed a powerful blow for the first Cornice run in the third when he hit to left center for four bases. Bloodworth held the Cornicemen at bay until the sixth when they counted twice. Bloodworth placed the game out of reach of hostile hands when he tripled to right with the bases full in the first half of the seventh and last frame. The Cornicemen added their last tally in the seventh on loose playing of the Daily infield however Safley contributed a nice bit of fielding on a fly to deep left and doubled Kirby at third ending the game.

Moore pitched a steady game for the Cornicemen although hit hard and loose fielding accounted for the one sided scorecard. Fielding of fly balls by Jones and R. Collier and The Daily outfield were features.

Power Co.—L. &amp; N.

The Powermen opened the game much as the Daily had in the first contest and piled up five runs hitting Calloway, ace of the Shopmen staff, opportunely while the Shopmen showed very poor fielding ability. The Powermen added another in the second on Bowen's double and two sacrifice flies. The Shopmen then took the offensive and scored four runs in the next three innings one of which was a tremendous poke by Vogel rolling to the centerfield gates.

The Power folks continued hitting Calloway and bagged a total of ten runs and the affair came to a close, 10-8 as the Shopmen failed to overcome the big lead. Banks was hit hard by the Shopmen but was steady in the pinches.

Shopmen—D. C. &amp; R. Co.

Tuesday afternoon the Shopmen meet the Cornicemen at 4 o'clock at the Malone Park.

Ed Giers of Valhermosa Springs, and others of his section are asking further assistance for the board on the Valhermosa, Lacey's Spring, Whitesburg pike. A. T. Tabscott, W. T. Wright, A. A. Sobotaka and others of near Hartselle are asking that a short road connecting Cedar Cove and the East Pike near Hartselle.

The White Weasel.

The ermine, or white weasel, is the smallest of the fur-bearers found in North America. The finest ermine fur comes from Russia and Siberia. In winter the animal is snow white except for a black tip on the end of the tail. In summer it turns brown, and the brown fur is, for this reason, known on the market as "sum-mer ermine."

cultural section of our state," said the former lieutenant governor.

Mr. Miller declared that it was safe to predict that in six hours work per day, enough of the products needed for human maintenance could be supplied and that more time was due to be given to spiritual development. The speech of the former state official produced a profound impression.

L. P. Troup, probate judge of Morgan County was the second speaker. He is a native of Danville and was given a hearty reception.

Troup Speaker

The Judge stressed the importance of home training, education and right environment. Dr. R. F. Lovelady, Birmingham, S. M. Lovelady of Calman, T. L. Baker of Decatur, J. R. Hargrove of Birmingham, Mrs. W. H. Simpson of Albany, Dr. Ira V. Hawkins of Birmingham, Mrs. J. T. Jones of Decatur, R. B. Cook of Oklahoma, and Mrs. George Hardwick were also among those who spoke Sunday afternoon. Dr. Hawkins preached the 11 o'clock Sunday morning sermon, which was a powerful effort. The music was led by R. L. Gibson of Danville. The communion service at 11 o'clock was conducted by Rev. Edmund Thinkstrum. The basket dinner, was served on long tables near the church.

Some pictures were taken by photographer Bullington of Albany.

H. O. Troup noted the following in the large crowd: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Petty, D. E. Petty, Judge and Mrs. L. P. Troup, T. L. Baker, Dr. R. F. Lovelady and daughter of Birmingham, former Lieutenant, Governor Miller, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Echols, Dr. and Mrs. F. L. Caraway, Mrs. J. T. Jones, Miss Rowena Baker, Edwin Baker, W. H. The Age-Herald informs us the stars favor John W. Davis. Unfortunately we do not count the stars at the ballot boxes.

The Germans will get only a small loan from the world, whereas if they had been let alone in 1914, they would have taken the world itself.

Jazz musicians ordered from France said they had no where to go. They at least know where they were expected to go.

As he nears the end of the highway of life, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, says he finds nothing worthwhile, except the service one may be to others.

Fred Gwin, Gadsden boy, has started on a hike to San Francisco. Many of us complain bitterly when a flat tire or a missing motor forces us to walk home.

They are claiming now that Leopold and Loeb are only babies. "Enfants Terribles" as young fellows, what would they become if allowed to grow old.

If President Coolidge pays as little attention to the bosses as he does to the time honored request of the photographer, he will at least not be a bossed president until March 4.

John W. Davis, as a kind of earnest to what he will read from his speech of acceptance, says "honesty" will be the issue. Republicans will consider him as unkind from now on.

The campaign of North Alabama health officials against malaria is bearing fruit. Of the many suspected malaria specimens examined at the Tennessee Valley laboratory during July, only seven were found to be positive.

Another sign of returning business is the announcement that 300 men, thrown out of work when the Mobile and Ohio shops at Whistler, Ala., were closed, will return to work on August 18.

William B. Wilson, former secretary of labor, is giving Samuel Gompers a warm verbal battle over the qualifications of John W. Davis, from the standpoint of the labor movement.

Both Mr. La Follette and Mr. Davis are entitled to a "clean bill of health" from labor as to their records in domestic affairs. Mr. Wilson said in again reviewing at length the record of both in connection with organized labor movement. But the latter, he said, "is entitled to the labor endorsement for his attitude on foreign relations alone."

The Liberty Bell is the emblem of the new "progressive" party. The LaFollette-Wheeler brand of liberty apparently consists in being permitted to adopt whatever political affiliation most likely to bring election.

The LaFayette Sun tells the truth when it declares you can generally determine what kind of tell he is by how much road he gives you, when your cars meet. There are road hogs, and then there are just ordinarily sociable sort of people, who will give you 50-50.

From the manner in which "The National Republican," organ of the Republican party, goes after LaFollette and Wheeler, the Republicans must be more afraid of the new ticket than they admit. Politicians spend very little time fighting shadows in national campaigns, unless they are afraid there is substance behind the shadows.

With elections ahead the church attendance should pick up wonderfully before November.

"So many, many laws; and yet most of us can look a cop in the eye without flinching," says The Birmingham News. Indeed so, those who execute the laws frequently display a great deal more common sense than do those who make the laws.

Men who served with the armed forces of the nation during the war are not according themselves justice unless they look up their adjusted compensation status. Putting the matter off not only will cause their application to be delayed when it reaches Washington, but absence of an application prevents payments of the insurance in a lump sum to the fighting man's dependent.

Senator Shields found the League of Nations more popular than he had anticipated. The senator was not considered a very warm friend of the Wilson peace policies and his opponents used this against him in the campaign which closed Friday with the election of General Lawrence D. Tyson. The Daily understands that General Tyson is for the Ford offer for Muscle Shoals, Senator Shields also was believed to have been friendly to the offer.

"Flapper rash" probably will do more to curtail the bobbed hair style than all other agencies combined. An outbreak of rash at Pittsburg has been traced to too frequent shaving by the flappers, according to press reports. Physicians who investigated the rash epidemic declared that many girls of high school age were found with the rash on the back of their necks, where shaving had been frequent in an effort to preserve the niceties of the French bob, the shingle and the other new methods of feminine headdress.

The many friends here of Captain R. A. Burleson, of Hartselle, will be interested in the announcement that he has been chosen as captain of the rifle team, composed of representatives from the various units of the Alabama national guard. The team will go to Camp Perry next month to participate in a national event. Captain Burleson has served with distinction in many other places of honor and his Morgan county friends believe that he and his team will bring additional honors back to Alabama.

In view of the reports of the presence of anthrax in some sections of the South, the following bulletin of the U. S. Veterinary Service will be of interest in Morgan county:

The first symptom of anthrax where it is local in character is very much as that of a snake-bite. The swelling appears either on the neck, shoulders, flank or underjaw. Sometimes the animal suffocates on account of this swollen condition, and sometimes chokes to death. These swollen places are hot, as the temperature of the animal runs very high, and while the animal in most cases retains its appetite, the fever is very high at the same time.

Where the animal shows no swollen places the case is not local in character and the entire system is infected, and where this is the case the animal sometimes registers a temperature as high as 110. In these cases the animal rarely recovers.

The reddish color of the skin in flank and high temperature nearly always appear, and the animal usually dies in from ten to forty-eight hours. Some cases run for days, but this is exceptional.

It is always advisable to consult a veterinarian if any suspicious symptoms appear. Mules and horses are more susceptible to this disease than cattle. Dogs will contract the disease, but are not very susceptible.

FUNERAL HELD FOR ROBERT BILLIONS

Funeral services were held at his late residence in South Albany, Sunday afternoon for J. Robert Billions, who died suddenly Saturday.

While Mr. Billions had been ill sixteen months his death came very unexpectedly as he seemed to be holding his own for some months. He had just remarked to his wife a few moments before death came, that Saturday was just 16 months to a day since he had been taken ill and that he wondered if he would be called on to suffer for another 16 months. Mrs. Billions had gone from the room on an errand leaving her husband sitting on the bed. When she returned he had passed away.

Those who have known Mr. Billions as an employe of the local Louisville and Nashville shops for years were greatly attached to him. He was an active church member and was in his 53rd year at the time of his death. He was twice married. His second wife survives him. He leaves no children.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. A. L. Mathison, instead of by Dr. James D. Hunter, the former the pastor of the deceased, as Dr. Hunter is now out of the city.

The body of the deceased was taken by Odd Fellows, to his old home in Blanche, Tenn., today for interment. The following were the pallbearers as announced by Walter L. Hatchett, secretary of lodge No. 52, Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Albany: A. P. Johnson, J. J. Akers, James Henderson, H. C. Fisher, D. F. Howell and J. A. Jennings.

What Lillian Advised Madge to Do and What Happened.

LILLIAN took the package I had brought her with a "thank you" robbed of its perfume by the warmth of her tones.

"Everything went according to schedule," she inquired, as we mounted the sweeping hall stairs to the second floor of the apartment building.

"Without a single hitch," I assured her, and neither of us spoke again until the door of the living room had closed upon us. There Lillian turned, and throwing her arms around me with an impetuosity unusual in her, kissed me warmly.

"If you could know how glad I am to see you safe back again," she ejaculated.

"I smiled a bit maliciously. "Just how I could escape coming back safe with the precautions you throw around me, I cannot imagine," I answered.

The muscles around her mouth twitched into a grin, and then she laughed outright.

"Yes, I did rather spread it on," she said. "I admit it. If anything had happened to you while on this fool errand for me, I—I couldn't—well, we won't talk of it any more! You're here safe with the thing for which I sent, and that's that."

She looked down at the package which I had thrust into her hands, and with quickened curiosity I wondered if she were going to show it to me. I knew her method of work too well, however, to have more than the faintest glimmer of hope that my curiosity would be gratified. Lillian inspects the Parcel.

When Lillian is at work on any problem, she calls to her maidhead, as a helper. Kipling's "He travels the fastest who travels alone." It is not that she is either selfish or a poseur. It is simply that she has a one-track mind and refuses to waste a second on anything or anything outside her problem. But sometimes her absorption gets a bit upon my nerves.

"You must be dead on your feet," she said, turning toward the door. "I'm going down to the kitchen for a bit of hot water—a touch of indigestion. You'd better get into your negligee. We'll be going to bed shortly. But keep on a pair of stockings and put your slippers where you can get them in a jiffy."

She went out of the door closing it after her, and I stood staring in the direction she had gone, with a stronger impulse than ever that Lillian expected something exciting to happen, something calling for swift and resourceful action before the day should break. I did not believe at all in the hot water excuse. She had gone to the kitchen to inspect the parcel I had given her.

I didn't mind the subterfuge at all, but when a few seconds after she had gone, I heard Mrs. Marks' excited tones, suddenly hushed, coming from down the hall, and knew that Lillian must have summoned her to the kitchen. My resentment suddenly alienated itself beside my thwarted curiosity, and I shook me with a chagrin of which I was thoroughly ashamed.

"Why, Peter?"

It was but a matter of seconds, however, before I was able to mount my commonsense firmly in the saddle again, and keep it seated there. By the time Lillian returned, I was ready for bed with a nervous thrown over my night attire, was wearing the hose and shoes she had stipulated. I also had let down a bed that indispensable adjunct of New York apartments, and prepared it for our company, and when Lillian came in I turned an absolutely placid face toward her.

She entered hurriedly, and I saw that the papers had been taken from around the package, disclosing a small square pasteboard box, without sealing or fastening of any kind.

With an approving, "Efficient boy," as she passed by me, she drew a low chair to the side of the bed upon which she usually sleeps, and placed upon it the box, the night-dress which she had asked of me a little while before, her own slippers and a flashlight. Then she rushed to the windows, drew the curtains and closed the heavy inside shutters, characteristic of the old-fashioned building.

"There can't any light get through there," she observed, with a satisfied air, and then she hurriedly undressed and slipped into bed beside me, after locking the door securely.

"You might as well go to sleep," she said. "There may be nothing coming off tonight at all. I promise you, if there does, I shall waken you."

"I am not at all sleepy," I protested.

"No, I don't imagine you are," she returned dryly, "but if I were in your place, I should count sheep."

She was interrupted by the sudden opening of the apartment hall door, and a rush, stealthy, but unmistakable, of several pairs of heavy feet toward the Marks apartment.

Lillian sprang noiselessly from bed and stole swiftly to our door, unlocked the lock, so noiseless was the movement and opened it for the tiniest crack, listening intently. Presently Mrs. Marks' voice, high-pitched, querulous, sounded in an eager, questioning tone.

"Why, Peter? Whatever in the world does this mean?"

day, at least. No wonder his heart swells with pride and adds inches to his insignificant height, making a veritable Napoleon of him. For was not Napoleon small in stature but big in courage and heroism? And did not Josephine top him by at least a head? Love is no respecter of size, so who knows but that this may be the day of days for him—yes, and for her, too. For you know, history repeats itself—and Love is the father of history!

What on earth do you care whether such a man as that likes you or dislikes you? That's no affair of yours! The only thing that ought to interest you is, do you really like him? Of course, you don't—nobody could like a man with such bad manners and such a bad heart.

Don't let him. He isn't worth one hour of worry or one minute of sadness for a nice, little, trusting, gentle girl like you.

Do Blackheads Mar Your Beauty?

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

LUCREZIA BORI

HOW can I rid myself of beauty-marriage blackheads? Many women ask this question with a look of anxiety on their faces, and the worried look itself is enough to detract from the smooth calm that should rest upon the face of the truly beautiful woman.

You should remember that you owe it to yourself to keep your beauty up to a very definite standard. Otherwise you are likely to become conscious of your draw-backs, and this consciousness etches lines of worry in your face.

You will notice that blackheads are most persistent in the parts of the face where there is a certain amount of fatty tissue. This forms a soft place for them to rest. For instance, low on your chin and about your mouth and the corners of your nose, you will often notice tiny blackheads that are hardly visible unless you give yourself a close scrutiny.

These are the annoying little dots of black that enlarge and mar the beauty of your skin, until you dread to have anyone regard you closely, so conscious are you of beauty-marring blackheads.

Now the thing I want to impress upon my readers in search of beauty is that true beauty must come from within and not from without. Of course, this is true of your facial expression, but it is also true in a more literal way—that is, the real cure for your blackheads must come from within and not from without.

The best way, then, to effect a lasting cure for blackheads, and to give yourself the smooth, lovely skin that every woman desires, is to begin the beautifying work from within.

Any beauty expert who is versed in the care of the face will tell you not to squeeze your blackheads. It is true that the expert on beauty will sometimes venture to press them gently out for you. But no one who does not understand the skin thoroughly should do this. If blackheads are to be pressed out by the expert, there is a certain time when they are in a condition to have this done. If they are pressed too soon, this is likely to rupture the skin and cause a disfiguring little hole that will not go away.

The precautions that cure blackheads from within and not from without, consist in such necessary safeguards as proper diet, plenty of water and painstaking care of the skin.

Never neglect to eat your quota of green vegetables. Stick to spinach and green beans and lots of lettuce and fruit. Don't disregard the old advice about apples, and remember that two a day are better than one. Drink plenty of water and see that what you drink is not too cold.

As for the external care of your

YOUR HEALTH

Why Dandruff Comes and Ways to Banish It

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

United States Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DANDRUFF is the most common and most widespread of all the diseases attacking the skin. It is known to the medical profession as "pityriasis capitis." Pityriasis is derived from a Greek word meaning "bran." So you see, the medical term is wisely chosen. "Bran-like scales of the head," is a term well-describing the trouble.

There are diseases attacking other parts of the body which are much like dandruff. Scales form and when they are brushed off, many more scales speedily appear.

Any scale-producing disease in the hair becomes doubly disagreeable. It cannot be dealt with as it can on an exposed surface. The scales pile up on the scalp, cling to the roots of the hair and produce a disagreeable appearance.

If the scales of the dandruff are permitted to accumulate, there will follow more or less irritation and itching of the scalp.

The oil-producing glands of the scalp are overactive in the dandruff disease. This increased activity causes excessive oiliness of the hair and, in turn, results in the development of more and more scales.

Like other skin diseases, it is caused by a diseased condition of the scalp. It is not due to poor vitality, has no effect on the system, and is not caused by excessive amounts of fat, like butter, cream and pork, is another aggravating factor. There are serious doubts about any germ being the cause of the condition. Certainly, the germ origin of the trouble has not been proved.

There is no reason why a man should have any particular trouble in removing the disagreeable scales. It is merely a matter of cleanliness. But it is different with a woman. It is a big task to wash and dry a great mass of long hair. A man can easily and quickly cleanse his hair and scalp. While he will not remove the causes of dandruff, he will have his scalp so clean that no evidence of the trouble will be noticed for several days after a good shampoo.

In washing the hair use a good soap. There are so-called "hard-water soaps," made to form a good lather with hard water. Wet the hair, work up a good lather, rub it into the scalp with the ends of the fingers, and then rinse it out. Having done this well, repeat the process at once. The second washing will cut the grease and take away the scales.

The secret of the successful shampoo lies in the thoroughness of the rinsing. There should be an abundance of water used, gallons of it. Unless the soap is entirely removed it, in turn, will add scales to a dandruff-covered scalp.

A man who has oily, dandruff-filled hair should clean his head in this way twice a week. I do not believe good soap and clean water will do the least bit of harm, and I know that the scalp can be made sweet and clean by this procedure.

Whether a woman is to be relieved of dandruff depends on her willingness to give the hair frequent shampoos. The hair cannot be sweet if more than ten days elapse between washings.

The scalp may be treated with a lotion consisting of one grain each of roscin and glycerin to one ounce of water. This is applied with a medicine-dropper every second night. By using the dropper the fluid reaches the scalp and is not washed off on the hair. This remedy should be thoroughly rubbed into the scalp with the ends of the fingers.

Roscin is not good for light hair because it darkens the hair. This simple treatment plus an abundance of soap and gallons of water, will do much to cause the annoyance of dandruff to disappear.

POLKA dots are at the height of fashion, and justly so, when they appear on a frock as effective as the model sketched above.

The white frouded background is marked by big dots of bright blue and the dress is made beltless.

White cape edged in blue ribbon to match the dots forms the smart deep bertha and the cunning little ruffles that go around the frock, leaving an open space at the front.

Boils

THERE is a reason for everything that happens. Common-sense kills misery. Common-sense also stops boils! S. S. S. is the common-sense remedy for boils, because it is built on reason. Scientific authorities admit its power! S. S. S. builds blood-power, it builds red-blood-cells. That is what makes fighting-blood. Fighting-blood destroys impurities. It fights boils. It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It always wins! Mr. V. D. Schaff, 557 15th street, Washington, D. C., writes:

"I tried for years to get relief from a bad case of boils. Everything failed until I took S. S. S. I am now absolutely cured, and it was S. S. S. that did it."

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

New York Letter

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—It is like us all to strut when we get the chance. An express company makes a business here of transporting large amounts of currency between the banks, post offices, etc. It uses large armored cars which look like traveling arsenals. One was stationed in front of a bank the other day during the noon hour. A guard stood a little distance back but the driver was in his seat. Standing close to the car was a little flapper with boyish bob and pale blue organdy dress. The driver was all eyes for her. Suddenly he reached down in back of him and extracted a bundle of bills at least four inches thick. The top one I saw was a $100 note. They must have all been that. He handed it handed it to her with a smile. She held it just a second and passed it back to him—a look of exaltation on her face. If this boy happened to be a bank president he would have had her in his mahogany office to impress her with all the telephone calls and the grinning of the ticket. He gave her the big thrill with what he had.

There is a story, of course, in the first performance of any great musical work. The story in the first playing in this country of Respighi's "Concerto," to be given by Albert Spalding here early in the autumn, is a particularly nice one from an American point of view. When Albert Spalding was winning unprecedented honors as a young student at the Conservatoire at Bologna, Otterino Respighi was a fellow student and the two were close friends. They never saw each other after graduation until one day during the war when Spalding, who was in the aviation service went down to Italy to play at concert for the soldiers. Respighi, who was in the Italian army, was on the same program. The two artists were excitedly delighted at the reunion and in telling each other of all that had happened since their student days, the Italian composer told Spalding of his new "Concerto Gregoriano," which he had dedicated to the American violinist and which he wanted him to play in Paris, the first time it should be heard upon a public platform. Spalding was only too happy to promise and this summer while on tour in Europe, the concert was held. It was an amazing triumph for both the composer and violinist not because both are not accustomed to triumph but because Paris went beyond its own normal enthusiasm for art in its reception to the work of these two foreigners. And now, Spalding is to play the "Concerto Gregoriano" in New York this fall, the first hearing it will have had on this side of the Atlantic.

Perhaps no chauffeur has ever been honored more impressively than Lewes A. Mason, who drove the high-powered motor cars of Pierre S. Du Pont and his family and served them so well that Mr. Du Pont has just laid the cornerstone of the Lewes A. Mason Memorial hospital. The chauffeur was taken to the West Chester hospital one time with a broken hip and because of the excellent care given him, Mr. Du Pont offered to contribute money for a wing to the hospital. Before the plans were completed Mason died of influenza, and then the Du Ponts enlarged the plans and have built a complete hospital and given it to the town of West Chester in memory of the chauffeur.

There seems little doubt that among the plays announced for early fall opening "The Werewolf" will be one of the most eagerly anticipated. Not because we know anything about it, it is a foreign import and the story has not even been made public, but because of the cast. With Laura Hope Crews, Marion Oakley, Leslie Howard and Lennox Paule, anything must be good.

Still another New York girl becomes a peeress. Miss Phillipa Wendell daughter of the J. Wendell, and sister of the present Countess of Carnarvon, has announced her engagement to the Earl of Galloway.
